

Sveučilište u
Zagrebu

Zagreb, 10. siječnja 2012.

Poštovana/Poštovani, posebna nam je čast i zadovoljstvo pozvati Vas na međunarodnu radionicu sveučilišnog ogranka Mreže ugroženih znanstvenika Scholars at Risk Network pod nazivom Development and activities of the Scholars at Risk Network - International experience and Croatian perspectives Workshop. Radionicu zajednički organiziraju Sveučilište u Zagrebu i Fakultet političkih znanosti Sveučilišta u Zagrebu.

Radionica će se održati u četvrtak, 19. siječnja 2012. godine od 9.00 do 16.45 sati u auli Sveučilišta u Zagrebu, Trg maršala Tita 14. Radionica će biti održana na engleskom jeziku.

Mreža ugroženih znanstvenika osnovana je 2000. godine na Sveučilištu New York s ciljem promicanja akademske slobode u cijelome svijetu i zaštite ljudskih prava znanstvenika. Inicijativi Scholars at Risk Network do danas se priključilo preko 600 svjetskih sveučilišta. Sveučilište u Zagrebu član je Mreže ugroženih znanstvenika od 2010. godine.

U prilogu Vam dostavljamo program radionice. Ljubazno molimo da svoj dolazak potvrdite na e-mail iva.piski@unizg.hr.

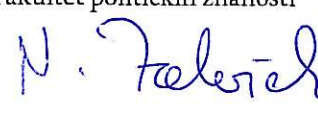

Nadamo se da ćete se odazvati našem pozivu.

S poštovanjem,

Sveučilište u Zagrebu

Development and activities of the Scholars at Risk Network
International experience and Croatian perspectives
Workshop

organized by University of Zagreb and Faculty of Political Science, University of Zagreb
University Hall, Rectorate's Building, Trg maršala Tita 14, Zagreb
19 January 2012
9:00 to 16:45 hours

SAR Network was founded in 2000 with the aim to promote academic freedom throughout the world and protect human rights of academic scholars. It is based at the New York University and today it encompasses more than 600 participating universities (more information about the SAR network is available at <http://www.scholarsatrisk.org/>). In 2010 University of Zagreb joined the SAR Network. By this first SAR international workshop in Zagreb we would like to present SAR to a wider academic audience and to discuss its mission and possible tasks at the University of Zagreb.
